

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A cooling system for a display projector. The display projector has a plurality of panels substantially enclosing a heat generating component. The system includes means for conducting heat from the heat generating component to at least one panel of the housing and means for 5 dissipating the conducted heat, wherein the means for dissipating comprises at least one panel of the display projector.